Bankruptcy News

Bankruptcy resolves debts through a court mediated process, but did you know that there are several different types of debts?

The most common type of debt brought into a bankruptcy filing are unsecured debts. These are debts that do not have any collateral or asset held against the loan. Credit cards, utility bills and medical bills are common examples of unsecured debts. Generally, these debts are easily resolved in a bankruptcy filing and require minimal repayment.

Secured debts are tied to the loan by collateral or an asset. Defaulting on payment can lead to repossession of the asset, if not resolved. Mortgage and car loans are two of the most common secured debts in bankruptcy.

The third category of debt can be either an unsecured or secured debt. Priority debts are those that are considered of top importance in your case, and whose lender is paid first. These debts are typically ineligible to be discharged without payment or liquidation; and include things like tax debts, domestic support payments, student loan debts, court ordered fines, or back due wages or commissions.

We can help with all types of debt, contact us today to find out how!

What Clients Are Saying

Last year I lost my home to foreclosure. I thought I made too much money to file for bankruptcy. I thought we weren't hurting enough to qualify. The gossip on the streets is so confusing and untrue, that it mislead me to the point of losing my house and moving into my parent home.

One conversation with a family member lead me to Leebankruptcy.com. I read on bankruptcy and made an appointment. The saddest thing is if I had known the truth a year ago, I would still own my home.

Q & A With Mr. Lee

1: Why did you choose bankruptcy law as a career?

When I was a kid my grandparents had a lot of trouble with the IRS. They pinned them down for taxes when his income was very small. I saw firsthand how the 'little guy' can be taken advantage of and have no voice. I decided to go to law school to be able to help those that are limited in their own ability to help themselves.

2. What is your biggest wish for local residents in the coming year?

It would be for clients to understand that they have rights and not to just sit and do nothing. If they have a worry or a problem, they need to speak with someone qualified to help them. Of course, that would be Lee Law Firm.

Money Management Tips

A new year means a new opportunity to make this year a great one for your finances. Whether you are still in an active bankruptcy case, recently completed your case, or are looking to freshen up your money habits this year, the first place to start is by making a plan.

Planning your financial goals ahead of time can make managing your money much easier. Are you looking to pay down debts? Do you need to rebuild your credit? Or do you simply want to boost your savings?

Whether you are targeting your debt load, credit score or savings account, budgeting is crucial to accomplishing your goals. A mistake people often make is failing to list these as expenses in their budget. If you have targeted a debt account, specify how much you can afford to pay in your monthly budget.

Rebuilding credit means taking on new debt, which should also have a preset monthly payment allowance to keep you from overcharging on your debt accounts. Building credit means manageable balances with responsible payment histories. Know your limits.

Savings accounts should also have a designated place in your budget. Set a goal for saving a specific amount each month and be sure to deduct it from your income to prevent overdrawing on your account or the failure to save the money as planned.
