Note From The CEO

As we gather with family, loved ones and friends this Thanksgiving, we are reminded of how fortunate we all are.

As an attorney, I give extra thanks each year for the opportunity to give back to my community and help people get back on their feet.

The chances I get every day to help those that are struggling financially gain a fresh start is the reason why I do this job.

Money Management Tips

Black Friday! It is one of the most anticipated shopping days of the year, and also one of the most dangerous days for blowing your budget. If you are planning to make a trip out this year for some good bargains on items on your Christmas list, here are some tips for staying within your budget.

First, make a list of items you are looking to purchase and how much you can afford to spend on each. Having your gift list planned out ahead of time prevent you from buying unnecessary items or overspending.

Next, shop around. Many stores will have the same item for different prices. Don't just buy at the closest or most convenient store, but look for the real deals. You may also be able to get stores to match prices, so be sure to take your sales fliers and ads with you. Also, look for coupons online and ask in store once you get there. If a store doesn't have any coupons, check to see if they have any rebate or cash back options. Buying one item on Black Friday that provides you with a cash back coupons leaves you with in store credit to purchase another gift item in a few weeks.

Last, don't feel pressured to buy all your items on this day. Stores will be offering sales all the way until the New Year, so don't be fooled by "limited time" offers. Chances are those sales, and sometimes better ones, can be found closer to Christmas.

Fun Facts

Do you know why the cornucopia is the symbol of Thanksgiving?

The cornucopia is a basket of overflowing fruits and vegetables; symbolizing the plentiful food shared on the first Thanksgiving.

The original celebration was held in 1621, in honor of the pilgrims who sailed to the New World on the Mayflower.

Serving a giant feast of meats, corn, potatoes and vegetables, the pilgrims gathered together to give thanks for their safe journey that brought them to the land of opportunity.
